Overview

The Adult Nursing Support Pathway provides an immersive learning experience for those who are eager to deliver exceptional care to adults across a variety of settings, including community-based environments and hospitals. Under the supervision of registered nurses, apprentices will gain valuable hands-on experience in managing diverse patient needs, from acute injuries to chronic conditions such as asthma, diabetes, cancer, heart disease, dementia, depression, stroke, or arthritis.

The programme recognises that many adults may live with multiple health issues simultaneously, and the training is structured to prepare workers to address these complex care requirements with sensitivity and skill. By participating in this apprenticeship, healthcare staff position themselves for career progression within the adult nursing sector.
